Leadership Institute for Emerging Professionals
Be a part of a select group of architects in the 2019-2020 class of our Leadership Institute.

We Are Looking for People Who Want to...

- Learn lifelong skills to build their leadership capacity
- Improve their ability to work with others
- Broaden their perspective on the profession
- Take greater control of their career trajectory
- Have a greater sense of purpose

Meet Our Facilitator SETH T. HUFFORD, Partner, The People Group

Seth brings over 15 years experience to designing and directing leadership development programs. Working across the business, government, and nonprofit sectors, he has engaged diverse groups of people from community activists to business executives – as well as dozens of architects. Seth facilitates teams both large and small to tackle complex challenges, address inter-personal dynamics, and produce results. He partnered with the American Institute of Architects to workshop conference attendees through a process to examine pressing issues in the profession. Seth has also partnered with the AIA Foundation as the facilitator of the Leadership Institute for emerging professionals since the program's inception in 2016.

Seth currently serves as a partner in his firm, The People Group, where he focuses on building people capacity to create ideal organizations and communities. Previously, he managed global executive education programs at Carnegie Mellon University's Business School, directed Coro's Leadership New York program, and facilitated Leadership Pittsburgh's Leadership Development Initiative. He also has experience working in local government, economic development, and management consulting.
